

First look at designs for the new Mudgee hospital

Concept plans for the new Mudgee Health Service will soon be unveiled to the local community. We'll be sharing information and design ideas for the $70.2 million redevelopment at community pop-ups in Mudgee, during April.

Dates and places will be advertised in the coming weeks. If you'd like someone to come and present to your local group, contact Sarah Taylor at: WNSWLHD-Mudgee-Redevelopment@health.nsw.gov.au

The Project Team will be working hard to minimise disruption during the redevelopment... but there will be some changes and possibly some hiccups, so we seek your patience and understanding at these times.

Thankyou...

We'd like to thank the many local people who have given their time, thoughts and ideas on the hospital redevelopment, so far.

Our Project Manager, Jo Whitson and members of the Local Health Council have been out and about meeting with local groups and community representatives – as well as health service staff - to make sure the new hospital responds to local needs.

Jo Whitson said meetings had been held with people from across the community including:

- the Local Health District and Health Council,
- Mid Western Regional Council,
- Ambulance, Police and Emergency Services,
- the local Aboriginal Lands Council,
- local mines, and
- service and volunteer organisations.

"We've had some very useful meetings with local groups and we really appreciate the time they've given to assist the project," Jo said.

"We look forward to keeping the conversation going as the project continues."

Getting the word out: New community contact

Meet Sarah Taylor, the new community contact for the Mudgee hospital redevelopment.

Sarah will be working with Jo Whitson and the project team to keep the community informed and generally get the word out about the Mudgee Hospital project.

Feel free to get in touch with Sarah if you'd like more details about the redevelopment.

She can also arrange for someone from our project team to come out and talk to your local group or organisation.

Local history matters

An important consideration for the hospital redevelopment is the preservation of local history.

While no buildings on the site are heritage listed there are plaques, memorial stones, artworks and other mementos which have great significance to the Mudgee community.

These have been catalogued and will be preserved and incorporated into the new hospital, adding local character and history to the new development.

We'd love to hear from anyone who has old photos or memorabilia from the Mudgee hospital.

Where are we up to?

The Mudgee hospital redevelopment is well on the way. We're finishing the Schematic Design phase (that's just another way of saying how it will generally look and feel) and the next step will be the detailed design phase.

While the building plans are being finalised work will start on some of the early site preparations.

The hospital will continue to provide all of the current services available to the people of Mudgee, throughout the redevelopment.

Mudgee Hospital has a number of artworks, memorial stones and plaques which will be included in the new hospital precinct
